

EXPOSITION NOTES.

An enormous cable made of three-inch diameter fron has been received for the United States naval exhibit.

The North Dakota legislature has appropriated the sum of $70,000 for the purpose of completing the state build-ing and the state exhibit. The municipality of Boston has consented to lend the great Lenbach's masterpiece, the portrait of Prof. Virchow, to the Chicago exposition, where it will be placed in the pavilion of pathology. The Italian government will send its fine art exhibit in the man of war Eridano. The ship is now at Venice and will visit other Italian ports to gather the Italian exhibits and carry them to New York.

Several models of famous vessels have arrived at the government building, including a miniature of the Albatross, which made the famous arctic voyage, and a miniature of the steamship Fish

A collection of South American ex-hibits has arrived at the transportation building. The collection includes a native mule and a llama, both of which were finely mounted by Prof. E. Howell, of Washington, D. C. A life-size plaster cast of a South American woman is also in the display.

There promises to be at the world's fair a trotting steer. The name of the animal is Evader and it comes from the ranges of western Canada. For an anihave a remarkable trotting record, and its owner wishes to show what a freak steer can do in the trotting ring.

Arrangements have been made in London to transport to Chicago, for use at the world's fair, seven English coaches and sixty horses, together with professional drivers and guards. These aches will carry eligible and elect passengers from the heart of the city to the exhibition grounds and back for the modest charge of fifteen dollars, the box seat being five dollars more.

From the Watervliet arsenal gun shops at West Troy, N Y., will be sent for exhibition six guns of different calibers and sizes. They will include a twelve-inch gun, a ten-inch gun, a seven-inch howitzer, a five-inch siege rifle, a 3.6-inch rifle and a 3.6-inch mor-The largest and the smallest gun will be mounted alongside of each other. The largest is thirty-seven feet long and weighs fifty-two tons and the smallest is two feet long and weighs

A UNIQUE BUILDING.

New Jersey to Reproduce Washington's

New Jersey will have one of the most unique world's fair state departments at Jackson park. The state board will reproduce in part Washington's head-quarters in Morristown during the winter of 1779-'80. The New Jassey building will not be a fac-simile of this historical structure, but its main fea-tures have been chiefly modeled after it by Architect Charles A. Gifford, of lewark. In adopting a historical building for its design New Jersey has followed in the walco of Massachusetta and Pennsylvania, of which the one will have the old John Hancock resi dence and the other a reproduction of dence hall at Philadelphia.

STEW JERSEY RUILDING AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

New Jersey people think they have done a patriotic thing in selecting Washington's headquarters. They say that it was there that Alexander Hamition lived during the long winter of 2779, and that there he met the lady whom he afterwards married. In addition, celebrated men, including Green, Knox, Lafayette, Steuben, Kosciusko, Schuyler, "Light Horse" Harry Lee, Israel Putnam, "Mad Anthony" Wayne, and Benedict Arnold, have all been beneath its roof.

Enssia's World's Fair Fleet. The emperor of Russia has decided to dispatch a large squadron of warshing to the United States to take part in the naval display which is to be arranged in Hampton Roads to celebrate the opening of the Chicago exposition. This squadron will call at Cherbourg or Brest as a compliment to the French government, and the ships are also to visit the duke of Edinburg at Devenport. The squadron will be really commanded by Admiral Karnakoff, but It is to be nominally under the command Grand Duke Alexis, lord high admiral of Russia; and among the officers will be Grand Duke Alexander Michaelevitch, who is betrothed to Grand Duchess Xenie, elder daughter of the

A Unique Exhibit.

An interesting foreign exhibit at the world's fair will be a model of the sland of St. Thomas, Danish West Indies. It is about eight feet by four, built to a scale of six inches to the mile, painted in natural colors, showing the roads, country houses, ships and steamers in the harbor and the pretty town of Charlotte Amalia, with its two old legendary towers of Blackbeard and Bluebeard. It well be set into a table enameled in black, edged with gold, with terra cotta paintings of various spots of interest on the island, the whole being covered with plate glass.

Pern Will Not Exhibit.

The supreme court of Peru has desided that the appropriation providing for the expense of an exhibit at Chicago was illegally made. This will make a Peruvian exhibit at the world's fair

She Passes Them On. it. It must represent the culmination of a purpose, the realization of a dream, She-What a disgusting, cowardly of a purpose, the realization of a dream, thing an anonymous letter is! I tell or be the personification of a fancy, you, if I ever get one I don't keep it long!

He-You burn it at once? No. I send it off immediately to bodice, the short jacket, the full fold some friend that I hate. - Harper's -they all help to produce the desired

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

Variety and Freedom in the Mode of To-Day.

What One Group of Women Looked Like -The New Bonnet-Tollets for Lenten Wear-The Latest Colfure-Fashlous of the Day.

ICOPYRIGHT, 1893.1 Certainly the New York woman grows nore independent daily. The fact never before impressed me so deeply as it did yesterday when I stood in the midst of a large number of my sex, all crowded into the parlors of a club that had opened its doors to them that afternoon. They were well-dressed women for the most pert-rarely had I seen so many pretty gowns together-and yet every woman had asserted her independence.

There was merely a suspicion of the oop skirt, and there was but little em-One saw a commingling of all the Louis, the 1830 and the empire that was a little confusing and withal very pleasing. Great puffed sleeves frowned down on hopelessly drooping ones; great flares of skirts half encircled shrinking, clinging ones; big hats lovingly drooped over "loves" of tiny bonnets, and thick feather boas greeted fluttering ribbons in tender fashion. It was a very pretty cluster of color that stood crowded corner, and I sat myself down in a great chair, brought forth my implements, and proceeded to note in the bonnets. All women are. It

Last in this group of fair wome... came the girl with the plaid silk—such an immense plaid with such vivid color-ing that it almost took one's breath away. It was made very prettily, though, particularly at the back, where three plaits, turning toward the middle at each side, were drawn to gether below the waist under a loose

Before we leave the absorbing topic of dress to take up the still more ab-sorbing one of bonnet, let me remind you that all the dresses you order now must be of simple, unpretentious character, because, for one reason, it is Lent, and, for another, it is not well to trust capricious Dame Fashion to sny extent just at this juncture. She is ready at present for almost anything, and we do not want to provoke her to sudden and disestrous changes. There-fore, for a neat house gown, try this simple one of the Louis Phillipe, made from a combination suiting, plain material and border, skirt slightly full, bordered with plain bands above the embroidered border; the waist is simply gathered tightly into a close-fitting belt of material to match the skirt's band. A yoke of embroidery is put in, and where it joins the bodies proper two folds of the same material as belt are laid; they continue around the shoulder, even to the back of the dress, where they finish in a point. At the front the plaits are drawn into a point by a big buckle.

But I know you are more interested

PRETTY TOILETS.

the dresses in the group, while a small | takes three times as long to decide upon woman hovered near, regarding my procoedings with a timid, yet admiring air, and with frequent interpolations on how lovely it must be to write.

There were exactly three grays in that group, each a very pale, soft gray. One was made with gray bengaline, one had a very pretty silk V at the back and in the front, outlined with a rich pearl trimming and fringe. The third had a black velvet ruffle on the skirt, a black velvet crush belt, black velvet sleeves; a bengaline yoke, over which were crossbars of fine jet, joining collar and high belt.

Next to the first pearl gray maiden a woman stood elad in black velvet, plainly made, with a rich brocade yoke of white at the neck. Then a costume of old rose bengaline had a great deal of wide guipure de gene at the neck and sleeves of striped silk that looked as if they had got there by mistake, for they didn't resemble the gown a bit. Their color was a sort of faded gold, and the stripe running through was black. Then came a beautiful spring costume of nale blue muterial closely corded in owner wore a pale blue hat with black velvet and blue plumes and possessed a remarkably pretty complexion.

There was also a most brilliant damsel in a fawn dress, whose skirt had three bands of bright green velvet at its foot; bright green sleeves and bodice made very striking effect, which was slightly softened, however, by gauze.

green ribbon. A full velvet band carried down over the hips into a puff at the back also helped to soften the almost startling effect. So many gowns have these pretty effects at the waist line, or slightly below it. They look very pretty when finished at the back in a big puff, loop or bow. Of course, they are prettiest in velvet, though effective in silk also. It has come to be almost a duty to gracefully conceal the joining of bodice and skirt in the cos-tume of to-day. We dare not allow anyone to discover that there is such a thing as a juncture, unless we wear the tailor-made gown. We must carefully concean every suggestion of separation at this point, and make it appear as if the dress

had grown naturally and gracefully

upon us, as if no contaminating touch of dressmaker had ever been laid upon else it has no attraction for the average woman, or man, either, for that matter.

Thus we see so much of the belt, the the make-up of a tiny article but a few inches in diameter as it does to decide upon a garment ever so many yards in These three dainty bits that I must tell you of are smaller than usual, which fact only makes them more precious in our sight. One has a brocade crown and is trimmed in front with folds and knots of black lace, from which spring small, straight loops of pale green ribbon. That's all there is to it, and yet, if you saw it, you could not help desiring it at once for your very own.

If you are blessed with plentiful locks of a good length, there is a new and a very pretty coiffure to be had for the fussing with it. It requires a great deal of fussing, however, and a great deal of careful manipulation to about the desired effect. The style is so difficult a one to describe that the sketch of it will give you a better idea than a description. I can tell you that the loosely braided hair is coiled once about the head, that a portion of it stands in a loop at the top of the coil and another portion in a smaller loop and that some ribbon loops and bows are also wound in with it. But I shall not attempt to tell you just how to hold your hand first, how to take the second position, how to gather and dispose of the strands, and all the rest, for I am certain you would be none the wiser when all was said. Take the model. a epaulets of very pale green, run mirror, and a deft assistant, and try it through at the edge with fine yourseif. EVA A. SCHUBERT.

A-Well, I must say that if my wife was like yours, always scolding and finding fault, I'd soon get a separation from her.

B-0, my wife isn't so bad as you think. She doesn't sing and she doesn't her superfluous energy in some way.-Fliegende Blaetter.

A Crists. Wife of Literary Man-Don't disturb my husband. He is in the midst of a Visitor-Is he at work on a critical scene in his new comedy? Wife-No; it's worse than that. landlord is talking to him about the back rent -Texas Siftings. Would Require a Sunday Edition. Mr. Cawker-Here is an article on "What One Woman Thinks." It occu-

Mrs. Cawker-What of it? Mr. Cawker-I was wondering how large a newspaper would be required to print what one woman says. Town

O, ONCE YOU WERE A BABY.

you did, when she took her darling agai

O. yes, when mamma rocked you with hillab Your loving eyes half opened and at her softly peeped. And then they'd close so happy without a spec You knew that naught could harm you when Shouldst lead me on:

I loved to choose and see my path. But now Lead Thou me on;

I loved the gariah day, and, spite of fears.

Pride ruled my heart. Remember not pe so fat, You pounded with your rattle and kicked you chubby feet,

And everybody thought you just sweet enough Yes, when you were a baby you were s night and day— No matter what might happen you had to have Until a tiny "tootsie" came gently as the To show the pearly tressure to the ad-lay While mother kneeling by you would for your welfare pray.

And angels watching o'er you would whisper t

Who, while it softly slumbered, in answer O. don't you wish some magic would change you

John's, and people came from far and near to hear her sing that as a solo. It kind of upset him hearing it, I sup-Beloved by all and petted and guarded day and night Without a care or sorrow and with a futur speered, but I didn't wait to hear wha -H. C. Dodge, in Goodall's Sun. else was said. A fellow shoved a quarter in my hand and I slid out. Smith was standing under the lec-tric light on the corner, with his han's in his pockets and his hat over his myself, like lots of us news paper chaps hadn't any reg'lar place to sleep, but it comin' on summer I didn't care so much, 'cepting, of course, when it rained. Then a fellow can generally find cover somewhere, if it isn't so nice But this night I'm going to tell of was pleasant and warm. The "cop" didn't drive me off my private settee in Central park till nigh one in the morning. Guess he overslept hisself. When I'm roused up that way I genblack and with blue silk sleeves. Its at the bottom, that innumerable little town, my headquarters. It's a highsmall curls droop from the coiffure, toned place, so it's cheaper for me to stop outside. But there's the light from the windows, and every time the big doofs swing open a fellow can see, just for a minute, eating and drinking going on, and, if he imagines a good deal, why, it's almost as good as being

> Three swell-looking chaps were standing outside when I got there. Not for the same reason I was though They'd been to the theater or some where else, and, as I heard one of 'em say, it was too early in the evening to think of going to bed.

inside.

It was Jack Mengher said that. Handsome Jack they used to call him in our ward, where he was raised. All us fellows knew Handsome Jack by sight. Though you'd never think he come from any such low down place as nigh Washington square that was aw-Water street to look at his swell rig ful good to mother whilst she was sick. and hear him talk.

But they say he's one of them kind call it, and teaches in a mission sch that catches on easy to real gentlemen's ways. And he's great on faro and poker, so of course he's hand and the pin to her and told her the whole glove with chaps that's trying to see story. life through a club winder. Now, though it's me says it, I've a bit of a voice of my own, wherever I the pin. But she never spoke for a got it. For a spell I was a choir boy at | minute. St. Michael's with a white surplice and all that sort of thing. But the others Smith is-a-a friend of mine, and I chaffed me about not having any shirt. so I left. So sometimes when I was stuck on papers or extra hard up. I used to sing for rickels front of Morrison's just about this time of night-the "catchy" songs that happens to be going, such as we chaps pick up on the street. So when Handsome Jack sees me, he calls out: "Hello," he says, "here's Joe, the call her-got me a steady job carrying boy that sings." And nothing to-do but the three of 'em must take me inside for a song.

There was another one of the party I knowed by sight. He used to buy papers of me reg'lar, one time. I heard 'em say his folks left him a pile o' money, and he was a gettin' through it as fast as Handsome Jack, and such as he, could help him. But I sin't givin' ber superfluous energy in some way.—

of that sort. I sin't a New York reporter. So this man was Smith, and it was Smith that set me down to one of the little tables with a plate of sand-> top of the settee for ard of him and After we once got inside Smith laid his face down on 'em.

> "Drunk, likely enough," I said to didn't seem to have much to sav to the others, or to anybody else, for that myself-for lots of that kind drift into matter. He stood leaning up against the mission—it being sort of in the slums, as you may say. But it's folks of that kind the mission is trying to the bar counter with a cigar in his mouth, but I see he'd forgot to light it. Some of the young fellows he knew joked him a bit, but he didn't get hold of. And this man, so far as ! could make out by his seedy rig, seemed to be something in that kind of busiseem to notice it much. And I kind of wondered what ailed him-good looking, plenty of money, and all the

> Whilst I was in the choir boy line, I heard some pretty good singing as a matter of course. But talk about your Handsome Jack, with a friend of his, sat down to the table nigh mine, with oprance-Miss Lawrence just went the drinks between 'em. I've got a chead of anything.
> Curious, wasn't it, that she sh pair of sharp ears of my own, and I

"Smith's about squeezed dry, eh,

The man with Jack nodded And I remember thinking what a healthy lot of friends Smith's money had

Well, after I got through I stood up like a man to pay for what I'd had-in my way. I sung 'em two or three of the things that was popularest then, but somehow they didn't seem to take.

of low like; "can't you think of some-thing different-something none of us

Whatever made me do it I don't know to this day. It was what they used to sing at St Michael's. Just one verse was not always thus, nor prayed that Thou years.

Of course I haven't got learning, 'cept such kind as a fellow picks up in the street. And I never used to sense the meaning of the church music, like I did the tunes. And when I got through I wondered what made it so still in the Smith was the first one spoke. Not spoke exactly, for it was a kind of a groan. Then he pulled his hat over his

"Guess you needn't go on, Joe, says Handsome Jack, looking up;

you've drove one man off a'ready. "Too rich for Smith's blood," another spoke before, put in his word.

"Let up," he says, kind of serious like, "don't kick the man now he's down. The girl Smith was engaged to used to be leading soprano at St.

Well, some laughed and som

For my duds was just awful, and that's just the fact. Rags and patches, only the rags was worst. And before I knowed what he was doin' he went down on his knees, and, after fumblin about his vest a bit, pinned up the big-gest tear of all, so's the bare skin didn't show quite so bad in where my trousers

Course I didn't think nothing much of it more than it was kind of a freak took him, till next morning. And if you'll believe me, Smith had took a pin—opil, sot with little dimuns—outer his necktie for to pin up my rags with it, not having any idea where to look for Smith. And not movin' in what you might call the highest circles, my

HE PINNED UP THE BIGGEST TARE

'quaintances mostly wasn't them I'd

But there's a young lady lives up care to ask advice of regardin' jewelry.

She belongs to a "guild," I think they down in our ward, where I used to drift in sometimes of a Sunday. I took

She turned whiter'n one of the mar-

"You did quite right to bring me will see it returned to him. If, as you

And then she stopped and walked to the window. She stood there lookin' out at nothin' ever so long. Then she gave me a dollar an' I left. And it was three or four months 'fore I ever heard

I'm speaking of-Miss Lawrence, I'll out papers for a newsdealer she knowed. An' We'nesdays and Fridays organ to the mission chapel I was tell-to the mission little Mike Dwyer was blowin' in my place. There wasn't a was kind of playin' all to herself, so I

Some one came shufflin' in and set down near the door. When I looked round, he'd dropped his arms on the soul there to bear, but Miss Lawrence sot myself down for a bit to lis'en.

I was late that day, and when I got

But meanwhile Miss-the young lady this, Joe," she said, after a bit. "Mr.

heard, he has lost all his moneyor see anything of Smith again.

ing of.

ble statutes in her parlor when she see

I didn't know what to do the first of was ripped from the knee up.

and twisted me round.

from top to toe.

room for a minute.

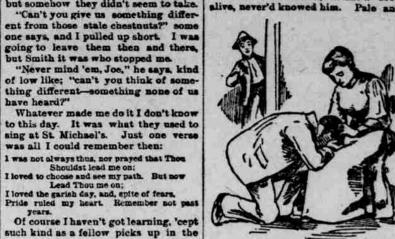

eves and went out.

was all I could remember then:

"Yes, poor fool," Jack says, as easy as you please. "Nothing more to be got from him. If he wants to borrow anything just give him the cold shake. That's what I shall do. A fellow's got to look out for number one in this

She and the organ stopped all at once. It was still as death in the vestry, and I heard her give kind of a "Great heaven!" says the man behind me. And I looked round again to shake my head at him. But you might have knocked me out with a feather duster in one round. It was Smithbut his own mother, if she'd been alive, never'd knowed him. Pale and

HE DROPPED HIS HEAD IN HER LAP. peaked, with a shiny coat and trous fringed at the bottom—well, he didn't look much like the Smith I see at Morrison's, you bet. went for him like a shot, for he was making a break for the door. "Mr. Smith-Mr. Smith!" I sung out. Stop, I want to tell you about your scarf pin. Miss Lawrence has got it, "Arthur?

one laughed, and so they were going on, when a young fellow, who hadn't It wasn't only a word, but it turned me round like a top. There stood Miss Lawrence staring at Mr. Smith.

"Arthur," she says again, and sank lown on to the settee like she faint. He never said a word. He put his hands over his face, went square dropped his head in her lap.

I ain't none too bright about things like that, but I've read love stories in the papers before now, and I see that wasn't no place for me; so I lit out soon's I got my wits about me, and left em to fix things up their own way before anyone come in.

Was they married finally? Well, I should say so. And I always cal'lated I had a hand in it, too. For, don't you eyes as I was goin' past. He catched me by the shoulder—not rough, though, see, the opil pin was one Miss Lawrence had given him for a birthday "Joe," he says, sudden like, "if I had present ever so long before—that's how she knowed it so quick. An' that's all.—W. S. Lawrence, in some of the money I've thrown away you should have a new suit of clothes

Munsey's Magazine.

OUITE PREPARED.

The Chemistry Professor's Little Joke on His Weary Students. The professor of chemistry in a certain eastern college was devoted to his particular branch of science, as he ought to be, and he had, moreover, that which is a delightful possession to any man, however lowly or eminent, sense of humor.

ustom to deliver a iceture on some subject of general interest connected with chemistry. Silliman's text-book was used for the daily lessons. Just before the class came to the chapter on strychnine, the professor took "An idotes" for the subject of his weekly

His absorption in the subject was great and his lecture was very long. dote for poison which had at that time been discovered. The students at last grew weary and manifested their wish dismissed in one of the ways which are well known in recitation

The professor was rather startled at had given out no lesson for the next

"Ab." he said, dreamfly, as he took up the book, "yes-let me see. Wellwell, boys, you may as well take strych-

"Strychnine?" ejaculated one of the

"Oh, yes," responded the professor, with a quizzieal smile. "If you have duly appreciated the lecture you have just heard strychnine can't hurs you. You are quite prepared for it."-Youth's Companion.

-Employer-'So you want a fort-night's salary in advance. But sup-pose you should die to-morrow?" Clerk (proudly)-"Sir, I may be poor. but I am a gentleman!"-Fliegende -Comrades - Watts-"Who was that man you spoke to a moment since?" Lushforth—"He was one of my college glassmates."-Indianapelis Journal

EVERTIFIED CAME HIS WAY.

Mrs. Bringers (fat and fifty)—That Miss Oldish hasn't any manners! Mrs. Gaines—Why, what's she done? Mrs. Bringers-She insisted on getting up and offering me her seat in a cable car yesterday. The hateful thing!— Chicago News Record.

A Man's Fulling. When overcoats are now, all men enery To ply the whish-breem o'er them every fay. Next year, the weelly friend and Metter shock Receive a careery whiching core a week. Breaking them once a meeth, the third year

Suffice to rout the scrumulating dest. And the fourth year, in their decline at When needing most, they 're sever br

SURVIVORS OF BALAKLAVA ty-force of the Vo rears ago sat down together t years ago sat down together the obafternoon, a small company of grissle bemedaled veterans, to a banquet the banqueting room of St. James' he says a London paper of recent date.

the chair was Surgt Burbert of to Fourth Light dragoons, while Lie Wightman of the Seventeenth lano occupied the vice chair. The comm tee by whom the banquet was orge ized searched the United Kingdom survivors, and the result was the pearance of twenty-even men only, they met hearty grasps were give and the old familiar names called ou
"Jimmy," "Pete," "Harry," "Ril, answered to the old call, and as has were wrung one gray-haired veter answered to the old call, and as has were wrung one gray-haired veter would say to another: "Good old che we managed to wriggle together many a year." The medals which we worn spoke of service in India durithematiny as well as in the Crimea, a though the veterans, with one excition, were plain clothes, on every bre the medals were conspienously played. There were over thirty gray present, noncommissioned officers. the new life mingled together and com-rudeship was cemented in good nut-of those present in the charge there were nine of the Eleventh hussars, nine of the Seventeenth lancers, eight of the Fourth light dragoons, one of the Scots Greys and two of the Eighth Royal Irish hussars. The single survivor who were his uniform, and probably the finest man in the company, ably the finest man in the company, was Sergt. Fawks, who stood six feed in height and measured forty-four inches around the chest. He was twenty-two years of age when he rode with the Scots Greys in the famous charge immortalized by the dead hureats. There is not a white hair to be seen in his closely out black cropt his cheeks are clean shaven, and his black mustache is pointed a la militaire. This man of sixty not only stands erect and man of sixty not only stands erect and firm upon his legs, but rejoices in his strength, and in proof thereof he ent bars of lead through with one sweep of his sword, and played with a forty-pound club in a way to astoniah every one. The gallant sergeant wears spon his breast the Crimean medal, with three clasps for Balaklava, Inkerman three clasps for Balaklava, Inkerman and Sevastopol, and also the Turkish medal, and his forehead and checks show now the marks of sword cut and builtst wounds. There were seven wounds in all received by Fawke on the eventful day, three of which were on his legs. Sergt. Fawke rods in the lord mayor's show last year and earns a livelihood as a teacher of physical excises in colleges and schools. cises in colleges and seh

Dr. Fourthly-I believe my seru sincerity this morning sank deep tate some hearts and did good.

Parishloner—Yes, as Foley and his wife went home he explained to people on the street car that his wife's hair and teeth were false - Life.

One of Them (who likes him)—I dow't see why you think George is half-witted,

The Other (who doesn't like him)—I don't. He base't any wite at all-

Children Cry for

Pitcher's Castoria.

M. W. LEVY. Pres. A. W. OLIVER, V. Pros STATEMENT Of the Condition of the Wichita National Bank the reminder, brought his lecture to a hasty close, and said: "That will do."

One of the class reminded him that he Made to the Comptreller of Currency at the Close of Business, Sept 30th, 1892.

RESOURCES. Loans and Disconts. $609,032,59 Bonds and Stocks... 36,532,22 U. S. Bonds 50,000.00 Real Estate 65,600.00 2,250.00 Due from U. S.....

8,241.55 Overdrafts Cash and Exchange, 231,297.60 $997,353.96 LIABILITIES.

Capital$250,000.00 Surplus 50,000.00 Undivided Profits ... 2,381.19 Circulation 45,000.00 Deposits 649,972.77

$997,353.96 Correct, C. A. WALKER Cashr. L. D. SEISNES.

J.F. ALLEN. W. H. Levingeron, State National Bank.

OF WICHITA, KAN.

DIRECTORS John B. Carey, W. F. Green, J. P. Allen, L. Allen, P. V. Healy R. Lombard, Jr. Pet-ette, L. D. Skinner, acres L. Lombard.

DAVIDSON & CASE

John Davidson, Poincer Lumbermen of Sedgwick County.

ISTABLISHED :: IN:: 1870

A complete Stock of Plus Lumber Shingles, lath, Boors, ask, etc., always on han

Office and yards on Montey are in tween Demplacare, and tirm at all branch yards at Union City, Okla-homa City, El Reno and Minco, Okla-homa Territory.